High risk profiles include those countries identified as “high risk” by international agencies concerning money laundering, drugs (either drug producing or trans-shipment points), terrorism (State initiated, sponsored or harbored), propensity or history of public corruption [referred to as “potentate” or Politically Exposed Persons (PEP) risk], organized crime, fraud, human rights abuses (including human trafficking), non-existent or inadequate financial regulation, fictitious or non recognized jurisdictions that issue fraudulent financial services licensing, and international sanction. This list also includes alerts for pseudo-official or non-governmental jurisdictions or entities that issue camouflage or spurious passports.

An indispensable reference guide for the compliance professional. Whether establishing and implementing a new program, reviewing an existing program or preparing for an examination or inspection, this publication lists all of the items one needs to consider based on international standards and best practices around the world (U.S. Department of the Treasury, Basel, FATF, Wolfsberg, etc.). January 2004 First Edition. 65 pages. Please see the table of contents at left.
